

Adam Leitman Bailey Selected To Board of Directors of Katherine-Gibbs School

Adam Leitman Bailey presents to a class of students at the Katherine-Gibbs School.

Adam Leitman Bailey served on the Board of Directors at the Katherine-Gibbs School from 2002 to 2006. Throughout his time on the board, Adam Leitman Bailey gave numerous motivational speeches, provided internships to Katherine-Gibbs students, revised the School's legal curriculum, reviewed textbooks, and met with senior staff and teachers to improve students' education and facilities.

The mission of the Katharine Gibbs School is to provide its students with the foundation for lifelong learning. Whether they choose to continue their education or enter the workforce, Gibbs graduates are trained to succeed. The school specializes in education in industries such as design, business administration, computer technology, criminal justice, and health care. The Gibbs School believed in creating a dynamic learning environment, both inside and outside of the classroom. Whether students needed help within individual courses or were simply looking to expand their horizons through a variety of social, cultural and educational activities, the Katherine-Gibbs School provided the resources to enable their students' success.

The front of the Katherine-Gibbs School.

