

Adam Leitman Bailey, P.C. Employees Fund and Build for Habitat for Humanity

On February 13th, 2010 twenty New York City residents, including Adam Leitman Bailey, P.C. employee Elissa Greenfield, made the Valentine's Day holiday extra memorable by celebrating it on a Habitat for Humanity construction site – appropriately located on Hart Street in Bedford-Stuyvesant, Brooklyn.

These enthusiastic volunteers also raised more than $7,500 to help cover construction costs for the new homes on Hart Street and Lafayette Avenue. The four-story, four-unit affordable condominium building, where they installed sheetrock and painted walls, is one of four new Habitat-NYC buildings in Bedford-Stuyvesant.

Elissa Greenfield stated, “Sarah and I had a great time participating in this event. It felt great to finally give back to the community that has had such an influence and impact on our young adult lives. It would not have been possible without the support from Adam Leitman Bailey, P.C. and we cannot thank them enough for their generous donations and support.”
