HONOREE

CHRISTOPHER HALLIGAN, ESQ.

Attorney at Law, Adam Leitman Bailey, PC

Christopher Halligan, Esq. has practiced residential and commercial landlord-tenant litigation and general real estate law for almost 20 years. During this time Mr. Halligan has appeared in thousands of court proceedings, including hundreds of trials and summary proceedings.

Mr. Halligan is widely known for his adroit courtroom manner and creative and pragmatic approach to complicated cases. His legal victories have been cited in numerous law journals and publications, and he has represented a diverse range of clients, from corporations and small business owners to rent stabilized tenants who are the victims of harassment, families, and not-for-profit organizations. Once referred to as “the Clint Eastwood of the courtroom” by a happy client, Mr. Halligan is often called a “champion” by those he represents.

Mr. Halligan works for Adam Leitman Bailey, P.C., considered one of the premier real estate law firms in New York City. The firm’s innovative strategies and notable victories have been profiled in both the Wall Street Journal and the New York Times, and the firm engages in a range of highly regarded pro bono philanthropic efforts as well. Prior to this Mr. Halligan was partner in a prominent landlord-tenant firm in New York. Before joining the firm, Mr. Halligan worked as a litigation attorney for the Department of Housing Preservation and Development.

Mr. Halligan has provided BCHS with wise counsel of the highest caliber for many years, handling an array of sensitive matters with great thoughtfulness and compassion. Throughout his work with the agency, he has consistently demonstrated understanding and sensitivity towards BCHS’ formerly homeless residents.

Mr. Halligan received his B.A. from the University of Massachusetts and a J.D. from The University of San Diego Law School.
